Well another week of border closures and more restrictions could get us all down. But in the midst of it all, it's great to hear of people exploring their neighbourhoods and discovering hidden gems they didn't know existed before. Little bush reserves with waterfalls and walking tracks are just some of the pictures I have seen people posting on social media. We can still keep dreaming about venturing further from home and start planning.

This week we have a lot of stories about food, which will suit our foodies! One of the wonders of travel is having different culinary experiences. Our cruise section showcases fine dining on family oriented cruise lines. We also take a look at food and wine offerings in regional New South Wales and where to get a good brunch in some of our capitals.

I hope you enjoy this week's read and you feel inspired to book a domestic holiday - school holidays are just around the corner and before we know it will be Christmas, so time to start getting organised, pop into your local travel agent and make a booking.

Don't forget to follow us on Instagram (@travelcruiseweekly) and Facebook to stay up to date and see more travel inspiration.

xx Jenny

The modern city makes the most of its hot climate, with multiple water parks perfect for cooling off, and even a ski field in a shopping centre (can you imagine!). If nature and culture is more your style, go on a desert safari to explore the stunning surrounds of the Arabian desert and learn about Bedouin life. Whatever style of holiday you're dreaming of, Dubai has an unforgettable experience perfect for you.

For foodies

Brunch at the best

Perth

Zamia Cafe

Centrally located in Perth's Kings Park, Zamia Cafe has a casual and stunning setting, overlooking one of the city's best playgrounds. The range of cakes, slices and muffins are baked in-house daily and the pumpkin and haloumi fritters with smoked salmon and poached eggs are a must. There is also the option to pick up takeaway meals or for a group. Pick up a platter, and choose a spot in the park to settle in.

Adelaide

Luigi Delicatessen

For a menu that is both colourful and exciting, Luigi Delicatessen is the place to go. Located in Adelaide's CBD, the venue offers up to five specials which change depending on what is in season. For a visually spectacular meal opt for a share platter, which features porkbelly bacon, Italian homemade sausages, herb oven-roasted mushrooms, caramelised beetroot, avocado, hommus, greens and house-made beans, along with other in-season specialties.

Darwin

Laneway Specialty Coffee

Laneway Specialty Coffee is a vibrant little spot serving brekkie favourites and sensational coffee in Darwin's suburb of Parap. A popular option at the airy locale is poached eggs and herb hollandaise on sourdough with a choice of BBQ pulled pork, smoked salmon, or wild mushroom.

Hobart

Jackman & McRoss

Freshly baked goods just out of the oven are the specialty at Jackman & McRoss. The bakery is a Hobart institution and has expanded to three locations in the city. They are all a great spot to start the day and pick up a few goodies for the road.

Ruby Princess team cleared

The NSW Commission of Inquiry into the Ruby Princess disembarkation in Sydney during March has found no misconduct on the part of staff at Princess Cruises or its parent company Carnival Corporation.

The highly anticipated report was handed down on Friday, finding "serious mistakes" by NSW Health which "inexplicably" assessed the vessel as low risk despite rising numbers of infections on board.

The report was welcomed by Princess Cruises which said it was testimony to the integrity of its people who had "always sought to cooperate honestly and professionally with officials in accordance with the regulatory environment".

Commissioner Bret Walker said there were no systemic issues, and that the NSW Health physicians treated the threat of COVID-19 seriously, and had proper scientific processes in place.

"They were diligent and properly organised...put simply, despite the best efforts of all, some serious mistakes were made," he said.

Virgin battle hotting up

A rival bid for Virgin Australia is the subject of a Federal Court hearing in Sydney today, with an alternate consortium hoping to gain access to information which will allow them to flesh out a further offer for the airline which is currently under administration.

Backed by five former Virgin Blue executives including co-founder Rob Sherrard, the group say their plan would leave Virgin Australia as a company publicly listed on the ASX, rather than "the asset of a privately-owned investment company based in the USA".

Meanwhile the revived Virgin is likely to have new competition - alongside Qantas and Jetstar - with Regional Express believed to be in talks to take over the leases of up to 10 Boeing 737s surplus to Virgin's requirements.

Winery and Bite Delights in NSW

New South Wales is a wonderland for food and wine lovers, home to renowned wineries, stunning views and fresh premium produce. Jasmine Hanna explores some of the regions which are making a splash.

Hunter Valley

The Hunter Valley packs in world-famous wineries, acclaimed restaurants, delicious local produce, and is surrounded by magnificent natural beauty. There are over 150 wineries and cellar doors in the area, more than any other wine region in Australia, including Brokenwood, Audrey Wilkinson, Tyrrell's Wines, McGuigan Wines, Scarborough Wine and Tulloch Wines. All offer tastings and experiences that range from tours of their wine-making processes to cooking classes with wine pairings.

Travellers can combine their love of wine with food, with a number of providers including Hunter Valley Private Tours, Two Fat Blokes and Wine Country Tours offering full and half day tours in private or small groups taking in wineries and local producers.

To get your fill for lunch or dinner, visit one of many local restaurants such as Yellow Billy Restaurant, Bistro Molines, Muse Kitchen or The Wood Restaurant, located onsite at Brokenwood.

Mudgee

Mudgee merges country life with urban cool and food and wine lovers flock to the destination for its 40 plus wineries. It is a place for gastronomic adventures, where historic buildings have been reinvented as boutique hotels, and big-city chefs sit at the helm of chic country pubs. Enjoy a taste of the country with Country Estate Tours who can showcase the region with a tour including food and wine experiences, horse riding or kayaking. De Beurepaire, with a flight of three Methode Traditionelle sparkling wines paired with delicious bites.

Orange

Orange combines stunning wine, landscapes and a fascinating history. The region's rich volcanic soil from nearby Mount Canobolas and its high altitude make for a cool climate ideal for producing award-winning wines. Visit Rowlee Wines to experience this first-hand. The estate makes wines exclusively from its single vineyard and offers guests intimate tastings, wine and food pairings and picnics in the vines. See Saw Wines also offers travellers more than just a wine tasting, with tours, lunches and hot air balloon adventures with a Prosecco breakfast all on the cards. Other wineries to add to the list are Philip Shaw and Swinging Bridge to sip chardonnay and pinot noir.

Or for dinner with a view, head to Sister's Rock Restaurant at the top of Borrodell Vineyard, which serves produce grown on-site including cherries, black truffles and heritage apples. Once you're full, head to the Agrestic Grocer and fill your suitcase with the region's bounty to take home.

Canberra

Charming towns and villages make up the Canberra District wine region, including Yass, Hall, Murrumbateman, Gundaroo and Gunning, as well as family-run cellar doors, restaurants and local producers. Tallagandra Hill is a must, with this small, family business dedicated to producing award-winning single vineyards wines including shiraz, tempranillo, vermintino and cabernet franc. Lake George Winery is the oldest in the district and visitors can enjoy their wines along with a rustic menu at onsite restaurant, The Westering. For a more modern feel, head to Shaw Wines and enjoy your tasting with a cheese plate and vineyard views.

For a feed that satisfies, head to Poachers Pantry, which is one of the finest smokehouses in Australia, located on a working farm, or satisfy a sweet tooth at Robyn Rowe Chocolates, where only the finest Belgian fairtrade couverture is used.

Shoalhaven

Shoalhaven boasts picture perfect beaches, relaxed villages, deliciously different food and fantastic wineries. For fans of great seafood, spend a lazy afternoon at Rick Stein at Bannisters, indulging in superb fresh local seafood in an airy and light-filled coastal venue. Bangalay Dining is also a must and draws upon Head Chef Brent Strong's passion for native and local ingredients. For a food and wine experience, Cupitt's Estate is a family operated boutique winery, cellar door, restaurant, bar, microbrewery and fromagerie in a beautiful coastal countryside setting in between Ulladulla and Milton. The Shoalhaven region is also home to great wineries and cellar doors, such as Cambewarra Estate near Nowra which has a restaurant on site, along with its cellar door which is child and pet friendly and offers a high tea experience for travellers amongst the vines.

It would be remiss of you to not experience the coastal highlights of the region, so make sure to book a tour with Dolphin Watch Cruises or Jervis Bay Wild to spot dolphins, seals and whales.

Southern Highlands

NSW's Southern Highlands is a rich tapestry of boutique wineries, heritage buildings, picture-perfect towns and green rolling hills. Peppergreen Estate in Berrima is a must-visit for foodies with the cellar door, tasting room and restaurant located in an iconic building once home to an antique store, and the estate offering tours of its vineyard and olive grove in Canyonleigh.

For travellers looking to satisfy both wine and beer lovers, head to Tractorless Vineyard and Bowral Brewing Company where visitors can do a guided wine, beer and cider tasting, or try grape stomping. If you are looking for a menu that features primarily locally grown produce, don't go past Eschalot Restaurant with its paddock to plate experience, or the Loch, a working farm, garden and guest house just minutes from Berrima which serves long lunches on Sundays.

Take four

Australia is home to many stunning waterfalls, and with international travel on hold, what better time than now to experience some of the best.

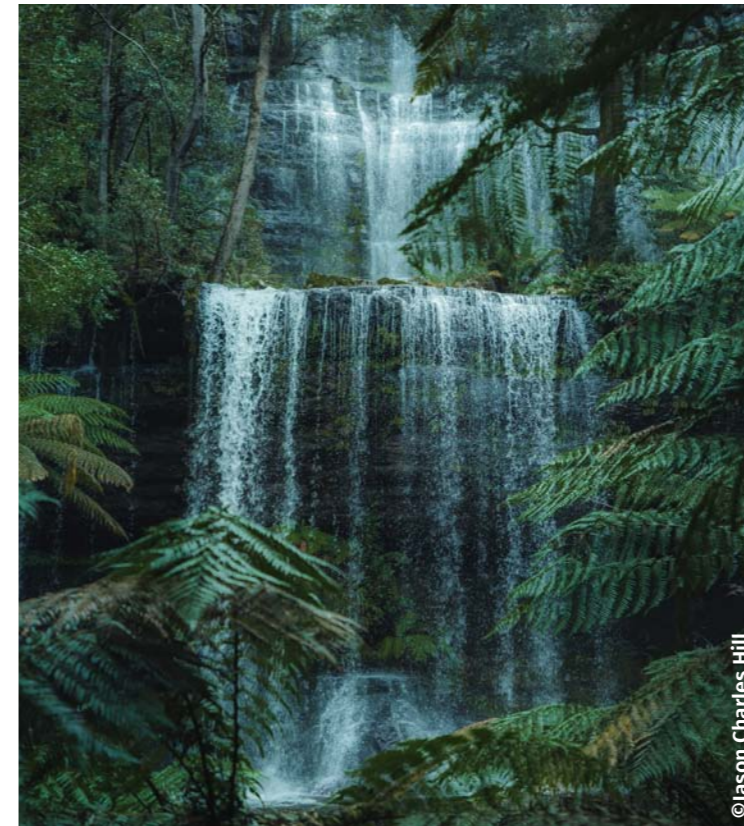

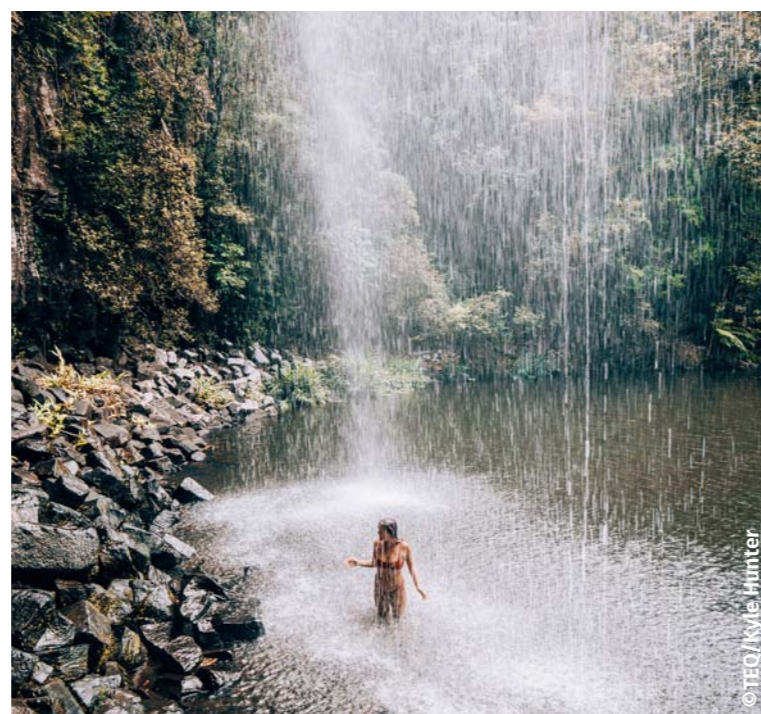

Wallaman Falls, QLD

This single-drop waterfall is the country's tallest, at 268 metres, and is located in North Queensland just two hours out of Townsville. For those in need of extra motivation, Wallaman Falls is set in the UNESCO World Heritage-listed Wet Tropics of Queensland, meaning you can tick off two distinct landmarks in one visit.

Millaa Millaa Falls, QLD

This plunge waterfall may only be listed as a Queensland Heritage Site, but that does not make it any less nourishing a visit – a trip to these falls can be supplemented with a swim at its base. Located in Far North Queensland's Tablelands region, Millaa Millaa Falls is located within the well-known 'waterfall circuit', which includes other similar features such as Elinjaa Falls and Zillie Falls. The area is well worth exploring!

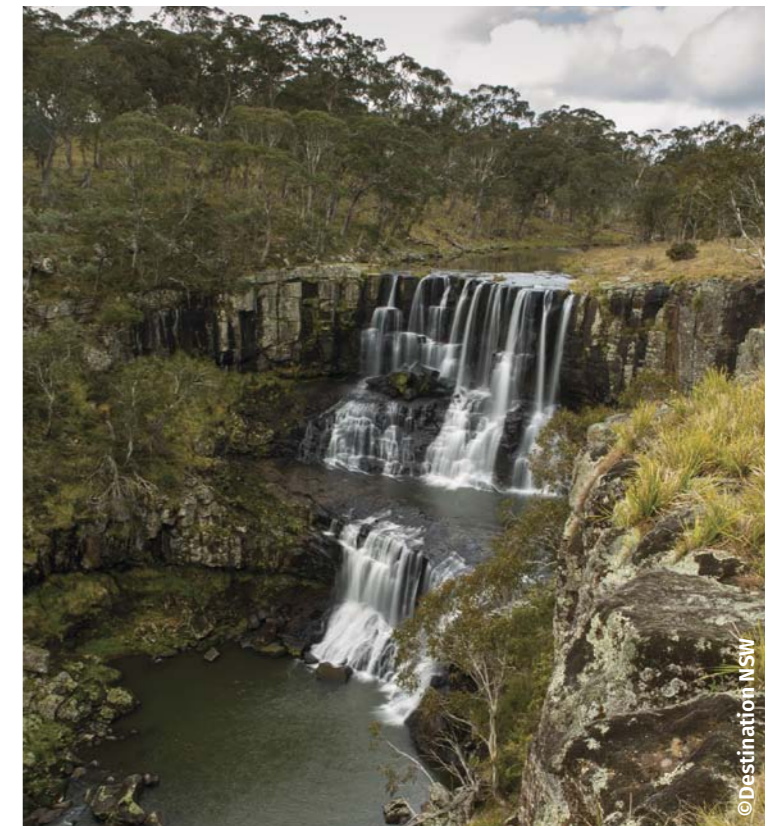

Russell Falls, TAS

Arguably Australia's most stunning waterfall, Russell Falls is a tiered-cascade fall nestled within Tasmania's Central Highlands. Set on the eastern boundary of Mount Field National Park, the falls were once recognised as one of eight tableaux chosen on a set of the state's postage stamps.

Ebor Falls, NSW

It's hard not to have at least one fall from New South Wales' Waterfall Way on this list, and we've chosen the town of Ebor's titular waterfall. If you have time to stop off at only one, make sure it's Ebor Falls, a 115-metre-tall, two-drop, tiered cascade. Following your visit, head into the charming town centre for a coffee.

Whose flag is this?

This flag is often shown without the coat of arms in the centre - this version pictured is used when displayed by the government. The colours of the stripes on the flag represent flamingos, because history says that when a figure - revered for his help in leading a revolution against the colonial powers of the country - arrived in the nation, a flock of these birds flew away. Do you know whose flag it is?

These ornate ceilings are usually more at home in grand palaces than metro stations, but in this city public transport is a bit more glamorous-looking than Sydney’s CityRail.
